Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be sustained.

The petitioner is a restaurant. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a specialty chef. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date of the visa petition.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief and additional evidence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's priority date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). Here, the petition's priority date is March 23, 2001. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $320.00 per week or $16,640.00 per annum.

Counsel initially submitted copies of the petitioner's checking account statements for 2001. On January 18, 2002, the director requested additional evidence to establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage.

In response, counsel submitted a copy of the petitioner's 2000 U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return which reflected gross receipts of $454,123; gross profit of $223,352; compensation of officers of $12,000; salaries and wages paid of $80,070; and a taxable income before net operating loss deduction and special deductions of -$5,540.

The director determined that the evidence submitted did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition accordingly.

On appeal, counsel submits an unaudited financial statement for the period from September 1, 2001 through March 31, 2002, and personal savings and certificates of deposit for the owners of the restaurant and argues that the owner and head chef of the restaurant is retiring and therefore, his salary could be used to pay the beneficiary.

The petitioner's Form 1120 for calendar year 2000 shows a taxable income of -$5,540. The petitioner could not pay a proffered wage of $16,640.00 a year out of this income. Net current assets for the year 2000, however, were $22,441, more than the proffered wage.

Accordingly, after a review of the federal tax return submitted, it is concluded that the petitioner has established that it had sufficient available funds to pay the salary offered as of the priority date of filing of the petition.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained.
